

Kailey Foster
South Kingston, RI

Kailey Foster is a dedicated 4-H representative from Rhode Island who has been a part of the program for six years. Over the course of these six years, Kailey has mainly worked with rabbits and dairy, with tremendous success in both projects. Her dedication and success in the 4H program has not only allowed her to become a member of the Rhode Island dairy quiz-bowl and judging team, but also the vice president of the Southern Rhode Island 4-H club. One of Kailey's main goals for her club is to be able to share the 4-H experience with younger members through fundraising, trips and other events. As of right now, Kailey's 4-H club is involved in Relay for Life, where they work together as a team to raise money for cancer treatment. Apart from 4-H, Kailey has many other interests and hobbies. After school, she competes in softball, cross country, and track and field for the Prout School. She also enjoys spending time working at the farm.
