John McMicken, CEO of the Evergreen Cooperative Corporation, currently oversees Evergreen's four operating entities: Evergreen Energy Solutions, Evergreen Cooperative Laundry, Green City Growers (hydroponic greenhouse) and Evergreen Business Services (professional services). John comes to Evergreen from Virtical Technologies, LLC, a Cleveland consulting firm he founded in 2009. He has over 18 years experience in the technology services field, holding senior level positions in both business development and operations management. He has successfully launched a variety of technology startups, offering services such as: document imaging, web-hosted document management, data storage, and most recently, Desktop as a Service (DaaS).

Currently, John oversees the Evergreen Cooperatives' day-to-day operations and is responsible for ongoing business planning and the evaluation of new service offerings within Evergreen's unique worker-owned cooperative model. He formerly served as President of Inventus Technologies (providing document management services to law firms) where he was instrumental in opening four new markets over a five year period. His executive-level track record launching and growing small to mid-sized technology firms, has given John the expertise needed to deliver solutions tailored to meet the needs of clients of all sizes.

John holds a Bachelor of Science degree from the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia. He and his wife, Sarah, have raised their five children in the Cleveland area over the last 20 years.
