

Biography

Shayne Wiese, along with his older brother, is the fifth generation to be a part of Wiese & Sons: Good Doin' Bulls in West Central Iowa. Their main focus is to produce high-quality, productive Hereford bulls for commercial cow/calf producers while being responsible stewards of the land. Shayne is in charge of operations at Wiese & Sons and is passionate about cow herd management, reproductive technologies, genetics, and grassland management. Wiese & Sons are advocates for conservation and have utilized cover crops, CRP, water filtration buffers, and erosion reduction practices for decades.

Beyond NCBA, Shayne has devoted time outside of work to cattle organizations like the Iowa Cattlemen's Association, Iowa Beef Breed's Council, Iowa Beef Industry Council, and American Hereford Association. Shayne was married last September to his wife Katie, and the entire Wiese family is optimistic for the future of the beef industry. They will continue to promote beef genetic improvement as well as responsible environmental management with hopes that the next generation has even more of an opportunity to thrive.
