BRIEF SUMMARY

David Herring is vice president of TDM Farms/Hog Slat Inc., a family owned business engaged in turnkey construction of confinement-type hog units, manufacturing and distribution of hog equipment and production of live hogs.

David and his brothers, Tommy and Mark, started TDM farms in 1983 growing feeder pigs for market outdoors. Today, TDM is a farrow-to-finish operation with farms in North Carolina, Indiana and Illinois.

David is a past president of the North Carolina Pork Council and currently sits on the board of directors of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC). He is a graduate of NPPC's public policy leadership institute and serves on the North Carolina Pork Producers Council's public policy committee and PAC board.

David is a 1981 graduate from the North Carolina State Agriculture Institute with an associate's degree in livestock management. David and his wife Lisa have three children: Magdalene, Mary Ellen and William.
