

Scott Hays Bio

National Pork Producers Council President

Scott Hays is a fifth-generation pork producer and has been involved in many aspects of production. While owning sows and production facilities, he enjoys involvement in the family's 6th generation swine management, swine building maintenance and livestock hauling business operations.

In addition to being president of the National Pork Producers Council Board of Directors, Scott also represents producers on various state and national committees.

Scott is a member of the Missouri Pork Association Board, Missouri Corn Growers Association, Missouri Agri-leaders of Tomorrow president, Missouri Farm Bureau, Monroe City FFA Alumni and Missouri Institute of Cooperatives.

Scott is a military veteran and attended John Wood Community College.

Scott and his wife, Riss, live near Monroe City, Missouri and enjoy time with their 6 children and 9 grandchildren.

