

Bio: Jamie Bay Nishi, Director, Global Health Technologies Coalition

Jamie Bay Nishi serves as the Director of the Global Health Technology Coalition (GHTC) and leads the coalition's policy and advocacy portfolio, as well as manages its engagement with members and other stakeholders and partners in government, the private sector, and civil society. She has over 12 years of experience in business development, project management, stakeholder engagement, and strategic partnership building. Prior to joining GHTC, Jamie served as Managing Director of Devex LIVE at Devex, a media platform for the global development community. Prior to serving in this position, Jamie was Devex's Senior Director for member services, where she managed a team supporting more than 1,000 organizations and 700,000 development professionals worldwide. Before joining Devex, Jamie spent nearly three years as a Marketing Associate and then Dedicated Advisor for the Advisory Board Company and interned in the US Department of State's Office of South Central Europe. Jamie holds a master's degree in conflict analysis and resolution from George Mason University and a bachelor's degree in government from the College of William & Mary.