

Will Gartshore -- Bio

Will Gartshore works in WWF's U.S. Government Relations department as a Senior Policy Officer on issues including international species conservation, wildlife crime and climate change. For over five years, he has worked with Congress, U.S. Government agencies, and other environmental organizations to push for strong U.S. government efforts to save endangered wildlife and stop climate change. Working closely with WWF's Species, Climate and Campaign teams, Will strives to build working relationships and share WWF expertise with U.S. government partners.

Prior to joining WWF, Will worked as a writer for the Energy Future Coalition, Communications Director for Independent Action PAC and Managing Editor of the Greener Business Guide to Washington, DC. Will has also spent 15 years as a professional actor, performing in theaters in New York, DC and around the U.S., and providing voiceovers for TV, radio and WWF public service announcements.
