

Lloyd B. Miller
National Contract Support Cost Coalition

Lloyd Benton Miller joined Sonosky, Chambers, Sachse, Endreson & Perry LLP in 1979 and opened the firm's Alaska offices in 1984. Among other areas, Mr. Miller has worked extensively on tribal jurisdiction litigation (including trial and appellate litigation), alcohol and gaming regulation, Indian Self-Determination Act and "self-governance" matters, Indian health law issues, employment law, ANCSA land and corporate matters, land claims, government contracting law, Indian Child Welfare Act matters, U.S. Claims Court cases involving treaty rights (including federal timber mismanagement, land claim and money accounting matters), hunting and fishing cases, and a variety of general counsel matters for tribal governments, ANCSA corporations, and tribal health and social service providers.

Mr. Miller received his B.A. from Yale in 1975 and graduated with honors from the University of Virginia Law School in 1978, where he received the Order of the Coif for academic excellence. After graduation he interned for one year with Chief Judge James M. Fitzgerald of the United States District Court for the District of Alaska.

In 2007 Mr. Miller was elected to serve as Alaska's first lawyer representative on the Conference Executive Committee of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Mr. Miller also serves on the Board of the Alaska Chapter, Federal Bar Association; is a fellow of the FBA Foundation; is the Treasurer of the FBA Indian Law Section; is a past board member of Alaska Conservation Voters, Inc.; is a past board member and President of Alaska Legal Services Corporation; and is a past board member, Chair and the founder of the Native Law Section of the Alaska Bar Association.