

Lia Biondo | Society for Range Management

Lia Biondo handles the day-to-day operations for the Society for Range Management Washington, D.C. office. As the Washington, D.C. Coordinator, she manages the Society's relationships with Congress, Federal Agencies and the White House, helping to successfully navigate Capitol Hill and build relationships with key Administration officials and industry leaders.

In her role with the Society, she serves as Vice Chair of the National Horse and Burro Rangeland Management Coalition, an alliance of 18 national organizations dedicated to the pursuit of healthy horses on healthy rangelands utilizing commonsense and ecologically sound management principles.

Ms. Biondo is a native of the "Mitten State," she graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in Environmental Studies and Agriscience.