

Whit Fosburgh Bio

Whit Fosburgh is the president and CEO of the Theodore Roosevelt Conservation Partnership. Prior to coming to TRCP in 2010, Whit spent 15 years at Trout Unlimited, playing a critical role in the organization's evolution into a conservation powerhouse. Additionally, he served as fisheries' director for the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, was the chief environment and energy staff member for Sen. Tom Daschle, and was a wildlife specialist for the National Audubon Society. In 2015, he was honored as the Conservation Partner of the Year by Bass Pro Shops.

Whit grew up hunting and fishing in upstate New York and was a member of Team USA in the 1997 World Fly Fishing Championships. Whit has a BA in Government from Georgetown University and a Master's degree from the Yale University School of Forestry, and coached crew at the collegiate level for 15 years.

Contact:

Whit Fosburgh
President & Chief Executive Officer
Theodore Roosevelt Conservation Partnership (TRCP)
529 14th Street NW, Suite 500
Washington, D.C. 20045