

Kate Wall is the Senior Legislative Manager with the US Office of the International Fund for Animal Welfare (IFAW), representing wildlife and habitat conservation, wildlife trafficking, and appropriations priorities before the federal legislature. Before joining IFAW, Kate was a senior lobbyist with The Humane Society of the United States where she managed a large and diverse policy portfolio focused on wildlife protection, animal testing, and agriculture. Kate received a B.S. in biology with a concentration in fine art from St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia, PA, and a J.D. from the George Washington University Law School in Washington, DC. She is a member of Women in Government Relations and a past member of the League of Conservation Voters Scorecard Advisory Committee. Kate and her husband, Ben, live in Mount Rainier, MD with their rescue cats.