

Derrick W. Leslie is of the Red Horizontal People born for the Mesquite People. His paternal grandpas are Black Sheep of the Navajo Nation. He is the current Tribal Education Department Director for the White Mountain Apache Tribe from Whiteriver, Arizona. In addition to this role he also serves on the Health Advisory Board and the Fort Apache Heritage Foundation for his Tribe. Civic engagement is something he also prides himself on as he serves in various capacities including Governing Board Member for Northland Pioneer College, IRB Member for Summit Healthcare Regional Medical Center, First Things First Regional Councilmember, and Advocacy and Governance Committee Member for the National Indian Education Association, in addition to other roles. He graduated from Grand Canyon University with an undergraduate degree in Psychology and earned a Graduate Certificate in Public Health Research from Johns Hopkins University. He is an avid Harry Potter fan and enjoys traveling and reading when he is not busy with work and volunteer.