

Biographical Information
Muckleshoot Tribe
Councilman Louie Ungaro

Councilman Louie Ungaro is currently serving his fourth term on the Muckleshoot Tribal Council. Prior to his election he was a commercial fisherman; fishing the waters from Washington to Alaska. Currently he chairs the Tribe's School Commission. Councilman Ungaro is an avid practitioner of his Tribe's treaty rights through hunting, fishing, and gathering in Muckleshoot's usual and accustomed places. He sees his role as chair of the School Commission to ensure that Muckleshoot culture and traditions are an integral part of the educational curriculum and that the Tribe's students receive an education both in the books and outside the classroom.
