VA's National Center on Homelessness Among Veterans

Roger Casey, PhD, LCSW is the Director of Education and Dissemination for the National Center on Homelessness Among Veterans. Dr. Casey holds a Doctoral Degree in Public Health and a Master's Degree in Social Work. He has worked with VA homeless programs since 1986, providing direct services, implementing national pilot programs and developing research initiatives regarding practice-informed residential treatment, housing and case management design models. Prior to helping establish the Center, he was the Director, VA's Homeless Providers Grant and Per Diem Program. Dr. Casey has worked with the U.S. Departments of Housing and Urban Development and Health and Human Services to develop and provide guidance and administrative oversight for the VA component of the Collaborative Initiative to end Chronic Homelessness, served as Principal Investigator for the VA Homeless After-Care Study, initiated actions to create the Council of Network Homeless Coordinators, and developed administrative procedures to enhance contract residential treatment under the Health Care for Homeless Veterans Program. Dr. Casey's research interests include homelessness, residential treatment models, and development and implementation of community-based practices that address the needs of individuals diagnosed with mental illness.
