Kevin R. Kosar

Kevin R. Kosar is the vice president of research partnerships at the R Street Institute, a think-tank in Washington, DC. Kevin manages R Street's partnerships with external scholars and research institutions, and incubates new policy programs. He also directs R Street's Governance department, co-directs the nonpartisan Legislative Branch Capacity Working Group, which aims to strengthen Congress, and established LegBranch.org, an online hub for congressional reform and scholarship.

Before joining R Street, Kevin worked for the Congressional Research Service for more than a decade, where he served as an analyst and research manager. Earlier in his career, he was a lecturer in policy and public administration at New York University and the Metropolitan College of New York.

Kevin is the co-editor of Congress Overwhelmed: Congressional Capacity and the Prospects for Reform (2020), and the author of three books. He has written for the New York Times, Washington Post, and other major media.

Kevin received his bachelor's degree from Ohio State University and his doctorate in politics from New York University.