

Taylor J. Swift Bio

Taylor J. Swift is the Director of Government Capacity at POPVOX Foundation. Taylor works closely with congressional offices, stakeholder groups, and policy experts to push for better working conditions and pay for congressional staffers, stronger federal workforce pipelines, and greater public access to legislative information.

Prior to joining the POPVOX Foundation, Taylor served as a senior policy advisor with Demand Progress, focusing on congressional transparency, capacity, and modernization. Prior to joining Demand Progress, Taylor worked as a policy fellow for the House of Representatives Democratic Caucus where he focused on budget, appropriations, education, labor, environmental, and tax policy. During his time with House leadership, Taylor worked to help stand up the House Select Committee on the Modernization of Congress.

Taylor graduated with his master's degree from The University of Akron, working as a teaching assistant for the Bliss Institute of Applied Politics. While in graduate school, he also worked as a research assistant for Policy Matters Ohio, a think tank focused on promoting a more inclusive economy for all, stronger labor rights for workers, and sustainable environmental policy.