

Jeanette Manfra

Jeanette Manfra is the Vice President for Global Risk and Compliance at Google Cloud, where she drives the strategy for building and maintaining the highest levels of security and trust. She is keenly focused on helping customers, especially those in highly regulated industries, navigate complex compliance requirements to securely transform their technical infrastructure and services.

Before joining Google, Jeanette held the crucial role of Assistant Secretary for Cybersecurity and the Cyber and Infrastructure Agency within the U.S. Federal Government. In this capacity, she led the modernization of security across Federal civilian agencies and was responsible for strengthening the security of critical national infrastructure. Her tenure in public service included various leadership roles at the Department of Homeland Security and the White House, culminating in the establishment of the nation's first civilian cyber defense agency.

A proud U.S. Army veteran, Jeanette is an alumna of the University of Wisconsin and Johns Hopkins University. She also serves as an adjunct professor at Johns Hopkins teaching cyber policy.
