

Barry J. Lockard, President/CEO, Cornhusker Bank

Barry joined Cornhusker Bank in November of 2006. Prior to that time his background included working at First National Bank of Omaha in the Treasury Management division. He also worked for Black and Decker, where he was a key account representative for the DeWalt power tool line and has worked for Cincinnati Bell's call center outsourcing arm, where he was the account manager for Microsoft.

Mr. Lockard's education includes holding a B.S. in Business Administration from Peru State College and graduating from the Colorado Graduate School of Banking where he was also a faculty member.

He also served as a member of the Nebraska Army National Guard in the infantry.

Barry serves as President and Chief Executive Officer for Cornhusker Bank and is a member of the Board of Directors of the bank and its holding company. Mr. Lockard has volunteered as a youth sports coach over the years and has served on several boards in Lincoln, including Lincoln's People's City Mission for the homeless.

He has been active in the banking industry through service on the Nebraska Bankers Association Board of Directors and affiliate NBISCO board. He has served on the board of Community Development Resources, a Lincoln based CDFI. He is a former director of the American Bankers Association Community Bankers Council. He is a current trustee of the Graduate School of Banking Colorado. He is the current Chair of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Topeka board of directors.