

Elly Brown is the Co-Executive Director of San Diego Food System Alliance. The Alliance is a diverse and inclusive network that works across sectors to promote collaboration, influence policy, and catalyze transformation in the food system. The Alliance's work is grounded in the shared platform, San Diego County Food Vision 2030, and is informed by the experience and expertise of the network and the broader community. Together, the Alliance is working to cultivate justice, fight climate change, and build resilience in our food system. Elly has been with the Alliance since 2015 and previously, she has worked in a variety of roles including consulting and financial services. Elly is a first generation American, having spent the majority of her life in San Diego and Japan. Elly enjoys the ability to contribute her business and consulting skill set to a cause she loves—food and community.
