The Honorable Kevin McCarthy
Minority Leader
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Speaker Pelosi, Minority Leader McCarthy, Majority Leader Schumer and Minority Leader McConnell:

The undersigned are among the 1,110 employers across the country that contribute to the Central States Pension Fund. These businesses make nearly $550,000,000 in contributions annually as part of our commitment to provide a secure retirement for 363,000 Central States participants, including 53,000 active employees. In the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, we are the grocers that have adapted and stayed open to serve our communities, the manufacturers that have safely and effectively kept production online, and the trucking and delivery companies that have continued to serve as the lifeline of the American economy.

The contributions we make to Central States represent a significant cost, especially for the many small businesses among us. To improve the plan's funding, employer contributions have already more than doubled since 2008. For years, those pension contributions have played a pivotal role in attracting and maintaining a skilled and competitive workforce. However, the perfect storm of external factors that threatens Central States and more than 120 other multiemployer pension funds has turned this strength into a crippling liability that will only worsen if Congress does not take action now.

As you know, without a legislative solution to the national multiemployer pension crisis, both Central States and the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation multiemployer program will run out of money to pay benefits in 2026. This catastrophe will virtually wipe out the pension benefits of 1.3 million retirees and working Americans. It will also pose a grave risk to the future of our businesses.

Some have cynically referred to solving this growing multiemployer pension crisis as a "bailout," but nothing could be further from the truth. As evidenced by two reports released by the Government Accountability Office in 2018, it is abundantly clear that neither Central States, its employers nor the participants caused the crisis facing the Pension Fund. The problems plaguing the Pension Fund can be traced back to the 1980 federal deregulation of the trucking industry, which ultimately caused a loss of more than 10,000 contributing employers and about 400,000 of its active workers. The Pension Fund, like many others, was also hit hard by the 2001 dot-com bubble burst and the 2008 financial crisis. Central States was also denied relief under the Multiemployer Pension Reform Act of 2014, leaving it no alternative beyond insolvency or federal relief.

Contributing employers to Central States currently face a combined $46 billion in withdrawal liability under the Fund, which has already complicated the ability of many employers to maintain essential lines of credit. Additionally, a substantial number of smaller employers can no longer afford to hire new workers because doing so would further increase their withdrawal liability. It's a vicious cycle.

If Central States is allowed to become insolvent, our withdrawal liability will remain and, in many cases, due to the size of our withdrawal liability and the inability to satisfy it, we will be forced to continue paying contributions into a Fund that can no longer provide any meaningful retirement benefits to our employees. Our workers know this full well—and so do any prospective hires. This will limit our ability to attract and retain high-quality employees. And so, unless Congress acts now, these combined impacts across the multiemployer pension system has the potential to force thousands of businesses into bankruptcy and eliminate tens of thousands of good paying jobs.

To avoid this outcome for Central States employers and thousands more just like us across the multiemployer pension system, we urge you to support the Butch Lewis Emergency Pension Plan Relief Act of 2021 as part of the upcoming COVID-19 relief package. Enacting this legislation will protect participants' benefits, save jobs and help the communities that rely on them. Thank you for your attention to this urgent national priority.

Sincerely,
