

Nathan Mehrens

Nathan Mehrens is ATA's Vice President for Workforce Policy. As part of ATA's advocacy team, he handles regulatory and policy issues in the labor and employment areas and works with ATA members on workforce development.

He previously served in several senior roles in the U.S. Department of Labor, including as the Associate Deputy Secretary, Acting Assistant Secretary for Policy, Regulatory Policy Officer, and Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy. He managed the Department's regulatory agenda and policy development process in those roles. He also handled day-to-day management issues for the Department's three adjudicatory boards (Administrative Review Board, Benefits Review Board, and Employees' Compensation Appeals Board) and the Department's Office of Administrative Law Judges. Mehrens worked with the Department's agencies in the areas of budget development, human resources, technology investments, and others. He managed classified issues for the Office of the Secretary and represented the Department to the President's Management Council and the National Security Council.

His prior work includes positions in several organizations focusing on workforce issues and an earlier stint at the Department of Labor in its Office of Labor-Management Standards.
