

Dr. Liya Palagashvili is an economist, Senior Research Fellow, and Director of the Labor Policy Project at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University. Her research focuses on labor regulations, independent workers, and the changing nature of work. She has published her research in academic journals, in books, and in media outlets such as the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal.