

Sara Steffens is the director of worker power for We Build Progress, a nonprofit organization that helps identify and develop solutions to build a more just, equitable and resilient nation. A native of Minnesota, Steffens attended The Evergreen State College in Olympia, WA, and went on to work as a newspaper reporter in Minnesota, Washington and California. In 2008, she helped lead her co-workers at the Bay Area News Group-East Bay (now called the East Bay Times) to organize and join the Communications Workers of America (CWA). Steffens went on to work as a union organizer, local activist, staff representative and as the secretary-treasurer of The NewsGuild-CWA. She was elected to serve two terms as the international secretary-treasurer of CWA, and later served as the interim director of the Worker Power Coalition. She is passionate about helping workers stand together to build democracy on the job, in their communities and across our nation.
