

Caitlin Codella Low
Managing Director, Human Capital Program

Caitlin Codella Low is the Managing Director of Human Capital at the Bipartisan Policy Center, bringing nearly 20 years of experience in public policy.

Before joining BPC, Low served as vice president of policy and programs at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation. She led the foundation's efforts in early childhood education, K–12 education, and oversaw the foundation's commitment to college and career readiness. Her work has been recognized in several major print publications.

Earlier in her career, Low worked as a program manager at the U.S. Chamber Foundation Corporate Citizenship Center and as a staffer in the U.S. House of Representatives. She began her career as a social work case manager at UPMC in Erie, Pennsylvania.

Low earned her Bachelor of Arts in social work with a focus on policy from Mercyhurst University in Pennsylvania. She also holds a certificate in project management from the University of Virginia Darden School of Business. She was an education policy fellow at the Institute for Educational Leadership and is a graduate of the Institute for Organization Management, where she also serves on the faculty.

Originally from Buffalo, New York, Low is married and has two children.