Biography

Alex Grover is the CEO of i2M, a United States manufacturer and gravure printer of flexible polymer films used in residential and commercial applications, proudly headquartered in northeastern Pennsylvania. Under her leadership, i2M operates as a highly agile, globally competitive manufacturing business focused on innovation, workforce stability, and long-term growth.

Alex is deeply committed to growing United States manufacturing by pairing advanced, sustainable product development with the empowerment of a highly skilled domestic workforce. She believes American manufacturing succeeds when private enterprise invests both in innovation and in the people who build it.

She has been featured in the Wall Street Journal, U.S. News & World Report, and leading trade publications for her work and innovations in manufacturing.

She serves as a Governor-appointed Commissioner of the Pennsylvania Early Learning Investment Commission, where she works to increase employer engagement in child care solutions, and as President of the board of CASA of Wyoming Valley. She is also an active member of the National Association of Manufacturers, the Vinyl Sustainability Council, and Young Presidents' Organization.

Prior to joining i2M, Alex held management roles at Altria, a Fortune 100 consumer packaged goods manufacturer. She is a graduate of the University of Richmond's Robins School of Business and Jepson School of Leadership Studies and a former Division I track athlete.
