Liz Wahl is an American journalist based in Washington, D.C. She has appeared on CNN, MSNBC, Fox News, Bloomberg, among other international news outlets and has written about her experiences for Politico Magazine. From 2011 to 2014, she was a correspondent and anchor for the U.S. branch of RT TV and made international headlines following her resignation from the channel, publicly denouncing its distorted coverage of the conflict in Ukraine and Russian intervention in Crimea. Wahl has since spoken out openly about Russian propaganda tactics, journalistic ethics, and current challenges and responsibilities in the rapidly changing media environment on several news outlets, as well as on panel discussions and journalism conferences in Europe including Lithuania and Norway. Previously, she had worked as a producer in her home state of Connecticut and as a reporter and anchor overseas in the U.S. Commonwealth of the Mariana Islands and was a regional correspondent for the NBC affiliate in the territory of Guam. She graduated from Fairfield University with a major in English/Journalism. She was born on a U.S. Naval base in the Philippines and is of Filipino and Hungarian descent.
