

BOB BUTLER is an Adjunct Fellow with the Technology and National Security Program at the Center for a New American Security. He is also the co-founder and managing director of Cyber Strategies LLC. Previously, he served as the Chief Security Officer for IO, a global data center service and product firm. He has consulted as a Special Government Expert to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, Air Force Scientific Advisory Board and other organizations on cyber security and enterprise risk management. Within his home state of Texas, he also serves as a member of the Texas State Cyber Security, Education and Economic Development Council. Prior to assuming his current roles, Mr. Butler served as the first Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Cyber Policy (August 2009-August 2011.) In this role, Mr. Butler acted as the principal advisor to the Secretary of Defense and other defense leaders on the development of cyber strategy and policy.

Mr. Butler has a distinguished career in information technology, intelligence and national security which spans 36 years of both public and private sector experiences. He is a retired U.S. Air Force Colonel and a former member of the Defense Department's senior executive service. He has also been an Account Executive and senior cyber strategist with Computer Sciences Corporation.

Mr. Butler earned a bachelor's degree of science in computer information systems from Manhattan College and a master's degree in business administration from the School of Business at the University of Maryland. He is a former RAND fellow and has served as a National Defense Fellow at Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service. He has received a number of public service awards. Mr. Butler resides in San Antonio with his wife, Annie. They have six children.

Bold.

Innovative.

Bipartisan.