

Nadège Rolland is Senior Fellow, Political and Security Affairs, at the National Bureau of Asian Research (NBR), based in Seattle and Washington, D.C., and a Nonresident Fellow at the Lowy Institute, based in Sydney. Her research focuses mainly on China's domestic, foreign and defense policy, grand strategy, and the changes in global dynamics resulting from the rise of China.

She is the author of "China's Eurasian Century? Political and Strategic Implications of the Belt and Road Initiative" (2017), "China's Vision for a New World Order" (2020), "Commanding Ideas: Think Tanks as Platforms for Authoritarian Influence," (2021) and the editor of "Securing the Belt and Road Initiative: China's Evolving Military Engagement Along the Silk Roads," and of "An Emerging China-Centric Order: China's Vision for a New World Order in Practice." Her articles and essays have appeared in a number of publications, including The Washington Quarterly, Strategic Asia, Politique Etrangère, Survival, The Diplomat, Foreign Affairs, The Wall Street Journal, and The Journal of Democracy.

Prior to joining the NBR, Nadège Rolland served for two decades as an analyst and Senior Advisor on Asian and Chinese strategic issues to the French Ministry of Defense, for which she has been awarded the Medal of Honor.

She holds a MA in China studies from the National Institute of Oriental Languages and Civilizations and a MSc in strategic studies from the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies. She is also a National Taiwan Normal University alumna.