

Leandro Folgar Bio:

Leandro Folgar is the president of Ceibal, Uruguay's educational technology and innovation agency. He leads the Edtech national strategy and faced major challenges during the COVID-19 crisis. He earned a BA in Education from the Universidad Católica del Uruguay, UCU, and a Master's Degree in Technology, Innovation and Education from Harvard University. His business credentials are from Harvard Business School. He currently complements his activity as a member of several Boards of Directors with postgraduate university teaching in the Business School at the Universidad Católica del Uruguay. A former Fulbright student, entrepreneur and business consultant, he began his career in education as a teacher, and has more than 13 years of experience in different school positions. He is passionate about technology, the evolution of education and its influence on the future of our global society