

Dr. M. Zaher Sahloul
President
Syrian American Medical Society

Dr. Zaher Sahloul is the president of the Syrian American Medical Society, SAMS, one of the leading medical relief organizations serving healthcare needs in Syria during the ongoing humanitarian crisis. Originally from the city of Homs, Syria, Dr. Sahloul is a practicing Critical Care specialist at Christ Advocate Medical Center in Chicago. He just returned from his last medical mission to the city of Aleppo in Northern Syria where he reviewed closely the medical and humanitarian situation on the ground. He has been in several medical missions to Syria, Jordan, Turkey, Lebanon and Iraq in the past three years. Dr. Sahloul has helped train medical relief workers in topics like medical practice in war zones, dealing with limited resources and disaster management. His articles appeared on the Lancet, Avicenna, Foreign Policy and Syria Deeply.
