

Vic Barrett

20-year-old activist Vic Barrett first witnessed the reality of climate change firsthand, as he was among the many impacted by the climate change fueled superstorm, Hurricane Sandy in 2012, which left his family and school without power for weeks. Barrett became involved in activism in high school by becoming a member of Global Kids, an organization that focuses on developing leadership skills for youth. Barrett then became a Fellow with the Alliance for Climate Education and spoke at the COP21 UN Conference on Climate Change in Paris in 2015, at the age of 15. Barrett was among 400,000 participants in the People's Climate March in NYC and delivered a speech at the United Nations General Assembly in support of sustainable development goals. Vic is one of the 21 youth plaintiffs in the Juliana v. United States constitutional climate lawsuit.