

Damian Leader

Damian Leader teaches diplomacy and U.S. foreign policy in New York University's Program in International Relations. A graduate of the Universities of Notre Dame (B.A.) and Toronto (Ph. D.), he served 29 years as a Foreign Service Officer. His career was largely focused on European security issues, including NATO, Russian affairs, and arms control in Brussels, London, Vilnius, Vienna and Washington. He has delivered lectures at Columbia, Cambridge, and St. Petersburg State University and has published on history and diplomacy, most recently in the Oxford Handbook of U.S. National Security (2018).