

T. Kumar is the Director for International Advocacy at Amnesty International USA. He has served as a human rights monitor and as director of refugee camps around the world. He often testifies before the US Congress and lectures at the Foreign Service Institute where US diplomats are trained. He also served as a Professor at Washington College of Law's Humanitarian & Human Rights Academy. He has monitored elections with former President Carter around the world and served as Judge of Elections in Philadelphia. He also served as a consultant to the UN Quaker Mission. Kumar was a political prisoner for over five years in Sri Lanka for his peaceful human rights activities. He started his legal studies in prison and eventually became an Attorney-at-Law and devoted his entire practice to defend political prisoners.