

Sasha Lezhnev

Sasha Lezhnev is Senior Policy Advisor at The Sentry, an investigative and policy organization that seeks to disrupt predatory networks that benefit from conflict, repression, and kleptocracy in Africa and beyond. Sasha has spent the past 25 years working on human rights, conflict, corruption, and U.S. policy in Africa, having worked at the Enough Project, Global Witness, and the U.S. Institute of Peace. While working in Uganda for 3 years, he founded the Grassroots Reconciliation Group, an award-winning NGO that has rehabilitated over 2,600 former child soldiers. He is author of the book Crafting Peace: Strategies to Deal with Warlords in Collapsing States and has a B.S. in Foreign Service from Georgetown University and a Master's in International Relations from Cambridge University. He helps lead The Sentry's engagement on conflict gold and minerals.

is Senior Policy Advisor at The Sentry, an investigative and policy organization that seeks to disrupt predatory networks that benefit from conflict, repression, and kleptocracy in Africa and beyond. Sasha has spent the past 25 years working on human rights, conflict, corruption, and U.S. policy in Africa, having worked at the Enough Project, Global Witness, and the U.S. Institute of Peace. While working in Uganda for 3 years, he founded the Grassroots Reconciliation Group, an award-winning NGO that has rehabilitated over 2,600 former child soldiers. He is author of the book Crafting Peace: Strategies to Deal with Warlords in Collapsing States and has a B.S. in Foreign Service from Georgetown University and a Master's in International Relations from Cambridge University. He helps lead The Sentry's engagement on conflict gold and minerals.