

Christian-Geraud Short Bio:

Christian-Géraud Neema is a researcher, analyst, and consultant specializing in China's engagement in Africa's transition minerals sector, geopolitics, and natural resource governance. With expertise in stakeholder mapping, policy analysis, and economic impact assessments, he has led research on China's copper and cobalt supply chains in the DRC, advised government agencies and think tanks, and participated in high-level strategic discussions on China-Africa mining relations. A non-resident scholar at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and former senior associate at CSIS, he has published extensively on Chinese mining investments, critical minerals, and great power competition in Africa. With direct industry experience managing mining operations in the DRC, he brings a cross-disciplinary approach to China-Africa resource politics. Fluent in French and English, with a working knowledge of Mandarin, he provides insights bridging academia, industry, and policy.
