

Dipali Mukhopadhyay is an Associate Professor of Global Policy at the University of Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey School of Public Policy. She joined the University of Minnesota with tenure in 2020. She is the author of two books: Warlords Strongman Governors and the State in Afghanistan (Cambridge University Press, 2014) and, with Kimberly Howe, Good Rebel Governance: Revolutionary Politics and Western Intervention in Syria (Cambridge University Press, 2023). From 2012 to 2020, she was a member of the junior faculty (Assistant Professor and Associate Professor, untenured) at Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs. In 2011, she held a post-doctoral fellowship at Princeton University.

Mukhopadhyay completed her PhD in International Relations at The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University in 2010, having received her MA at Tufts in 2005. She earned a BA magna cum laude from Yale University in 2002. Mukhopadhyay is affiliated with, amongst other organizations, the American Institute of Afghanistan Studies (Vice President), the American Political Science Association (member), Columbia University's Saltzman Institute of War and Peace Studies (Affiliate Member), the International Studies Association (member), and the U.S. Institute of Peace (Senior Expert). She is an Associate Editor at H-Diplo and a board member of ADI Magazine.

In addition to her two books, her work has been published in a number of academic journals, including the British Journal of Political Science, Conflict, Security and Development, Economics and Politics, Foreign Affairs, International Negotiation, Journal of Development Studies, Perspectives on Politics. She has also been published or quoted in The Economist, Foreign Policy, Just Security, Lawfare, The New York Times, and The Washington Post. Her education and research have been funded by, amongst others, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Eisenhower Institute, Harvard Law School's Program on Negotiation, New York University's Center on International Cooperation, the Smith Richardson Foundation, the U.S. Department of Education, and the U.S. Institute of Peace.