

Charles Michael Johnson Jr., is a Senior Executive with the U.S. Government Accountability Office. As a Director with GAO's International Affairs and Trade team, his portfolio focuses on U.S. efforts to counter overseas threats particularly evaluating and assessing the effectiveness of U.S. efforts to 1) combat terrorism and other transnational threats abroad and 2) assist and build foreign partners capacity to counter such threats. Much of his efforts over the past seven years have addressed U.S. efforts in high threat locations such as Yemen, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and other terrorist safe havens. Prior to joining GAO's International Affairs and Trade team, Mr. Johnson was an Assistant Director in GAO's Homeland Security and Justice team, where he was responsible for leading work on justice and law enforcement issues, including the FBI's post-9/11 realignment to focus on counterterrorism/counterintelligence. He also spent a year detailed to the U.S. House of Representative's Homeland Security Committee between 2005 and 2006, where he served as a key staff member for border security and immigration issues. Mr. Johnson graduated summa cum laude with a B.S. in business administration from the University of Maryland and completed Harvard University's JFK School of Government Senior Executive Education Program.
