

Rupa Subramanya is writer for the Free Press. She was born in India, partly raised there and the Middle East, and came to Canada in her late teens, and has lived and worked in India, the Middle East, Europe, and Asia. She's written for publications such as the Wall Street Journal and Foreign Policy, and her work has been cited in publications such as the Financial Times and the New York Times. She lives in Ottawa, Canada.