

BIOGRAPHY

Michael Fanone served as a law enforcement officer for twenty years. His service began with the United States Capitol Police and he subsequently transferred to the Metropolitan Police Department and was assigned to the First District. During his career, Fanone participated in more than two thousand arrests for violent crimes and narcotics trafficking; served as a special task force officer for the FBI, ATF, and DEA; and earned more than three dozen commendations for his work. Following his resignation from MPD, Fanone served as an analyst for CNN, a security consultant, and a firearms instructor.