

Biographical Statement for Judge John H. Wilson (retired)

For more than 30 years, John H. Wilson participated in all phases of the litigation process, from being counsel for both the plaintiff and defense in personal injury matters, to the prosecution and defense of criminal matters, to being the court itself.

Judge Wilson served as an Assistant District Attorney in Bronx County, New York. He was a trial attorney for the in-house counsel for a major insurance carrier, and has also managed both a private practice and a boutique law firm, handling both plaintiff's personal injury and criminal defense matters. He was elected to the Civil Court, Bronx County in 2004, and served as a Judge in the Criminal Courts of New York City for ten years.

After his retirement from the NYC bench, he served as the Chief Prosecutor for the Standing Rock Reservation in Fort Yates, North Dakota, and then as a Mediator for First Court in Mandan, North Dakota.

Judge Wilson has published in various Law Reviews, written a series of articles for the New York Law Journal, and has published numerous case decisions. He is the author of The Making of a Martyr, An Analysis of the Indictments of Donald Trump, Not Wasting A Crisis, The Lawless Biden Administration, and a children's book, Hot House Flowers, all available on Amazon.com.

He writes regularly for usagovpolicy.com, and for his own Substack blog, The Daily Outrage. He is also a frequent guest on the Vernuccio/Novak Report.

Currently, Judge Wilson is retired, and resides in the Free State of Florida.
