

Gabriel Rottman
Legislative Counsel and Policy Advisor
American Civil Liberties Union

Gabe Rottman is a legislative counsel and policy advisor in the Washington Legislative Office of the American Civil Liberties Union. He advocates in Congress and the federal agencies on an array of issues at the intersection of technology and civil liberties, including privacy, cybersecurity, free expression, telecommunications and internet policy, government transparency and intellectual property.

Mr. Rottman practiced law from 2007 to 2012 at Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP in Washington, D.C., with a focus on antitrust and foreign investment review. From 2001 to 2005, he worked in the ACLU's Washington Legislative Office as a communications staffer and senior writer. He has a joint honors B.A. from McGill University in political science and history, and a J.D. from the Georgetown University Law Center, both with honors.