

Mr. Brodi Fontenot
Chief FOIA Officer
U.S. Department of Treasury

Brodi Fontenot was appointed as the U.S. Department of the Treasury's Assistant Secretary for Management by President Obama on January 5, 2015. In this role, he advises the Secretary of the Treasury on the development and execution of Treasury's budget and strategic plans and the internal management of the department and its bureaus. In July 2014, President Obama nominated Fontenot as Treasury's Chief Financial Officer.

Previously, Fontenot served the Department of Transportation as the Assistant Secretary for Administration, the Chief Human Capital Officer (CHCO), and the Senior Sustainability Officer (SSO). As Assistant Secretary, he provided leadership and oversight in the areas of human resources, security, acquisitions and grants, transportation and facilities, and space management. As the SSO, he was responsible for implementation, oversight and management of the Department's energy, environmental and sustainability goals for approximately 11,000 buildings and 6,000 vehicles operated by the Department. Fontenot also served as a staff member of the US Senate Budget Committee and the Government Accountability Office. Fontenot received a B.A. from the University of Houston and an M.P.A. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.
