

US Postal Service Vans Stolen and Torched by Rioting Minneapolis Protesters

By Kristinn Taylor

Published May 29, 2020 at 2:48am

230 Comments

The rioting went on late into the night Thursday in Minneapolis, stretching into early Friday morning with protesters stealing and torching several U.S. Postal Service vans to protest the death in police custody of George Floyd on Monday.

Photos and videos show the vans being driven for joy rides and at least one set on fire.

robertklemko
@RobertKlemko

By my count there have been four postal vans stolen and destroyed.

2:42 AM · May 29, 2020

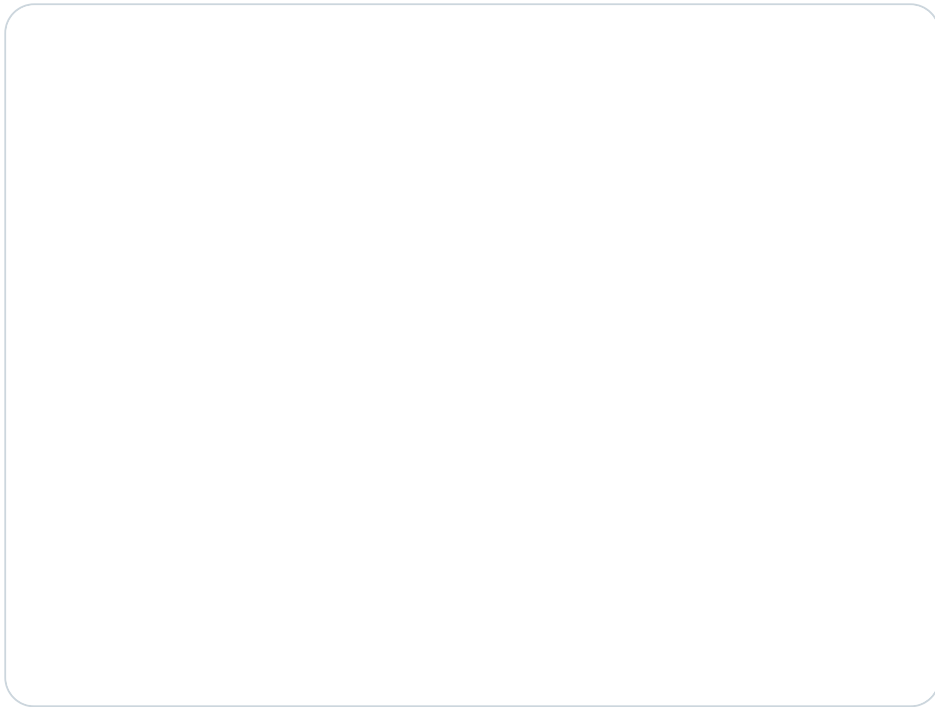

21 22 Copy link to Tweet

robertklemko
@RobertKlemko

The overturned postal van at East Lake and Minnehaha

2:51 AM · May 29, 2020

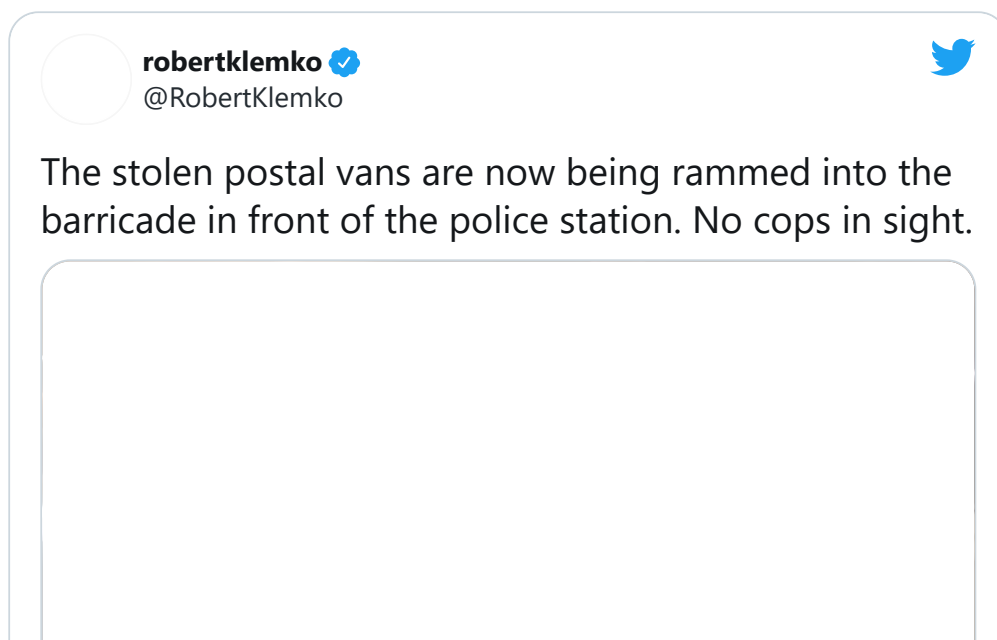

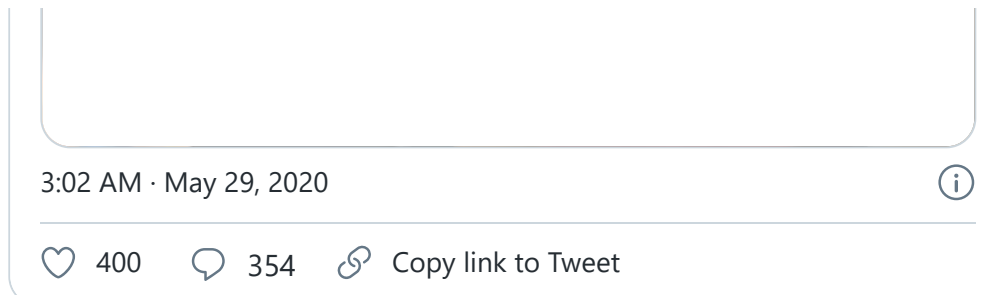

22 8 Copy link to Tweet

“Talked to 19-year-old who stole the postal van and rammed it into the police station, then drove it into another van that was on fire in the middle of the street. His name is Mohammed and he dropped out his college criminal justice program (!) yesterday out of disgust. Story tmw.”

Talked to 19-year-old who stole the postal van and rammed it into the police station, then drove it into another van that was on fire in the middle of the street. His name is Mohammed and he dropped out his college criminal justice program (!) yesterday out of disgust. Story tmw.

– robertklemko (@RobertKlemko) May 29, 2020

<https://twitter.com/sabotagebeats/status/1266260780896227328>

minneapolis wilin' tonight, they out here joy riding the postal van.

pic.twitter.com/tixqOB5QXY

– oxp (@oxpiqua18) May 29, 2020

The future of mail in voting looks great!