Kylie Burke is a California, Bay Area native and graduating senior at Howard University studying Political Science and Psychology in the College of Arts & Sciences.

On campus, Kylie has been an active member of the student government serving two consecutive terms as Chief of Staff for the Howard University Student Association before being elected by her peers as the 2021-2022 Student Body President. In these roles, she has advocated on behalf of the student body by executing large-scale programming initiatives that uplifts and celebrates student culture, drafting approved policy recommendations, and serving on various University-wide committees.

Kylie has also achieved academic success during her time at Howard and has been a recognized member of the Dean's List each year of her matriculation. In 2020, she also joined the University's Institutional Research & Assessment as a summer research fellow, where she co-authored the department's 2020 Assessment Institute presentation entitled "Inviting Students to the Table."

Professionally, Kylie has been fortunate to work within the field of politics each semester of her undergraduate career across the focus areas of government, communications, and social/environmental justice. This includes being selected for the highly competitive Howard University Congressional Fellowship program where she was assigned to the Office of former Senator Kamala D. Harris her sophomore year, where she primarily worked on the office's judicial and education portfolios.

In all her endeavors, Kylie truly works to uphold Howard University's core tenet principles of Truth & Services -- post-graduation, she plans to continue her passion for social justice and politics through attending law school allowing her to make an impact in her community both inside and outside of the courtroom.
