

Kathleen Clark

Kathleen Clark, a law professor at Washington University, has written extensively on legal and government ethics, and her scholarship has been cited in hundreds of books and articles. She has provided ethics training to governments at the federal, state and local levels, as well to government officials, lawyers and law students on five continents. After earning a B.A. in Physics & Philosophy from Yale College and a J.D. from Yale Law School, Clark worked as Counsel to the Senate Judiciary Committee, as Consultant to the Administrative Conference of the United States, and as Special Counsel to D.C.'s Attorney General. A member of the D.C. Bar, she serves on its Committee on Innovations in Legal Practice, and previously served on the board of the Association of Professional Responsibility Lawyers.