

Mark Dubowitz

CEO, Foundation for Defense of Democracies

Mark Dubowitz is the Chief Executive Officer of the Foundation for Defense of Democracies (FDD), where he leads projects on Iran, sanctions, and nonproliferation. A former venture capitalist and technology executive, Mark heads FDD's Center on Sanctions and Illicit Finance.

Widely recognized as one of the key influencers in shaping the Iran sanctions architecture of the past decade, Mark has advised U.S. administrations and lawmakers and testified more than twenty times before Congress and foreign legislative committees on Iran sanctions and nuclear issues. He is the author or coauthor of more than twenty studies on economic sanctions and Iran's nuclear program. Mark teaches courses on sanctions and international negotiations at the University of Toronto's Munk School of Global Affairs, where he is a senior fellow. In his book "The Iran Wars," The Wall Street Journal's Jay Solomon details the important role Mark played in the United States' campaign to ban Iran from SWIFT, one of Tehran's last entry points into the global financial system.

Mark has written for The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, The Los Angeles Times, Foreign Policy, The Atlantic, USA Today, Forbes, Slate, The Weekly Standard, The Globe & Mail, and The National Post, and appeared on CBS Evening News, CNN, Fox News, NPR, PBS, BBC and CBC.

Mark has a master's in international public policy from Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies, and law and MBA degrees from the University of Toronto.

1800 M Street NW • Suite 800, South Tower • Washington, DC 20036