

Eric Snelgrove is a Senior Fellow with the National Defense Industrial Association (NDIA). He currently serves as the CEO of Revere Federal Strategies, a strategic advisory and government relations firm that works with defense technology companies. Prior to his current role, Eric was a Professional Staff Member with the House Armed Services Committee and Minority Staff Lead of the Intelligence, Emerging Threats and Capabilities (IETC) Subcommittee. In this capacity, he conducted oversight of more than $50 billion in defense programs and advised Members of Congress on issues related to science and technology, research protection, counterterrorism, countering weapons of mass destruction, Special Operations Forces, cyberspace activities, and emerging threats. Eric is also the co-author of the Reagan Institute's annual National Security Innovation Base report card. He previously served as a United States Air Force Intelligence officer and in senior positions at the Department of Defense. Eric holds undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of New Hampshire and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.