

John Shehan
NCMEC Senior Vice President, Exploited Children Division & International Engagement

For over 20 years John Shehan has dedicated his career at NCMEC to combatting the sexual exploitation of children. He manages all NCMEC operations relating to combatting sexual crimes against children, child sexual abuse material, child victim identification, survivor services, and other NCMEC programs to prevent and combat child sexual exploitation. He works closely with law enforcement agencies at the international, federal, state, and local level; government representatives; technology companies and other private industry; and nonprofit organizations to collaborate on and expand efforts to combat child sexual victimization.