HORRY COUNTY, S.C. — Two women in Horry County, South Carolina, have been arrested and charged with human trafficking of minors, according to the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division (SLED).

On Monday, SLED announced that Margaret Louise Roberson, 56, and Camisha Marie McGaskey, 31, have each been charged with five counts of trafficking in persons involving victims under the age of 18 (first offense), as well as one count of criminal conspiracy.

The investigation revealed that the victims were forced to perform labor, including cleaning services at various locations between Jan. 1 and June 11.

SLED says that Roberson and McGaskey enticed, solicited, isolated, harbored, and/or transported five minor victims with knowledge that the victims would be subjected to forced labor or services.

The suspects allegedly benefited either financially or by receiving other forms of compensation.

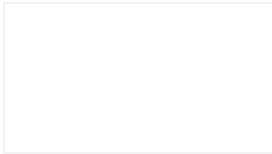

According to SLED, the exploitation began at the residence of one of the minor victims and later extended to various medical clinics in the Conway area of Horry County, where the forced labor took place.

Both Roberson and McGaskey were booked into the J. Reuben Long Detention Center in Horry County.

The case will be prosecuted by the 15th Circuit Solicitor's Office.
