

Mike Gonzalez, the Angeles T Arredondo E Pluribus Unum Senior Fellow at The Heritage Foundation, writes on identity politics, Critical Theory and Critical Race Theory, multiculturalism, assimilation, and education, as well as foreign policy in general. He spent close to 20 years as a journalist, 15 of them reporting from Europe, Asia and Latin America. He left journalism to join the administration of President George W. Bush, where he was speechwriter for the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission before moving on to the State Department's European Bureau. Gonzalez was a member of President Donald Trump's "1776 Commission," and a national security advisor to the 2016 Ted Cruz presidential campaign.

Gonzalez, who joined Heritage in March 2009, became a Senior Fellow in June, 2014 and a chaired fellow in 2019. He is a widely experienced writer and public speaker. He has written for National Affairs, The American Interest, Foreign Policy, The Claremont Review of Books, City Journal, Quillette, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, Time.com, The Hill, Forbes.com, the Huffington Post, USA Today, The Guardian, The National Interest, the Daily Signal, National Review, and others. Gonzalez has appeared on Fox, MSNBC, PBS, the BBC, CNBC, NPR, C-SPAN, The Voice of America, Television Española, Canal Plus, as well as many other networks and stations in the United States, Europe, Asia, and Latin America. He is a weekly opinion columnist for The Washington Examiner.

Gonzalez got his first regular reporting beat in 1982, covering high school sports for one summer for The Boston Herald. He went to work for Agence France-Presse in 1987, reporting from around the globe for six years, including covering the war in Afghanistan, where he traveled with the Mujahedeen in the late 1980s. In his first foreign assignment, in Panama in 1988, he was arrested, jailed overnight and expelled by the dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega.

After taking off two years to earn an MBA from Columbia Business School, he next logged 11 years with The Wall Street Journal, writing a column on the stock market in New York before being posted to Hong Kong in 1995 as deputy editor of the editorial pages of the newspaper's Asia edition. Between 1998 and 2003, he served in the same capacity for the European edition in Brussels, before returning to Hong Kong as chief editorial page editor.

Gonzalez holds a bachelor's degree in communications from Boston's Emerson College, and an MBA from Columbia Business School.

Books: NextGen Marxists: <https://www.amazon.com/NextGen-Marxism-What-How-Combat/dp/1641773537> What It Is and How to Combat it, with Katie Gorka

BLM: The Making of a New Marxist Revolution, published by Encounter Books in 2021. <https://www.amazon.com/BLM-Making-New-Marxist-Revolution/dp/1641772239>

The Plot to Change America: How Identity Politics is Dividing the Land of the Free, published by Encounter Books in 2020. <https://www.heritage.org/the-plot-change-america>

A Race for the Future: How Conservatives Can Break the Liberal Monopoly on Hispanic Americans, published by Random House's Crown Books in 2014. <http://www.randomhouse.com/book/228486/a-race-for-the-future-by-mike-gonzalez>